Dear Jeanne, (Reserved for Babs")

This year has really turn at to be the best year I ever hoped to have and I know it has for you to.

I do wish we could have gotten in more classes together but we only got in Study hall and Health. It's a shame they broke up the Honor Study hall we were so Quiet! Now, I can't hardly say a word. And you know thats hard for little old me!

I well remember Freshman week when I couldn't talk for a whole week! I thought I would die. I do wish you could have been in Home Ec. with us, but your Latin was calling you.

Another thing that comes to my mind is the day all through Kay came from State! I know you will never forget that day. Jim was so cute. Someday, you will have to tell me how you trapped him! Ha!

I well remember the night of my spend the night party. Did you have bags? I don't think you did You, were smart to go to sleep. I could have killed Peggy (loudmouth

I don't think any of our next three years could ever be as good as this year has been. I guess Freshman just naturally have a better time at least that goes with me.

I can't began to put down on paper what a truely good and close friend you have been this year! Best of luck in all you do. Always a friend, Bob

Foreword

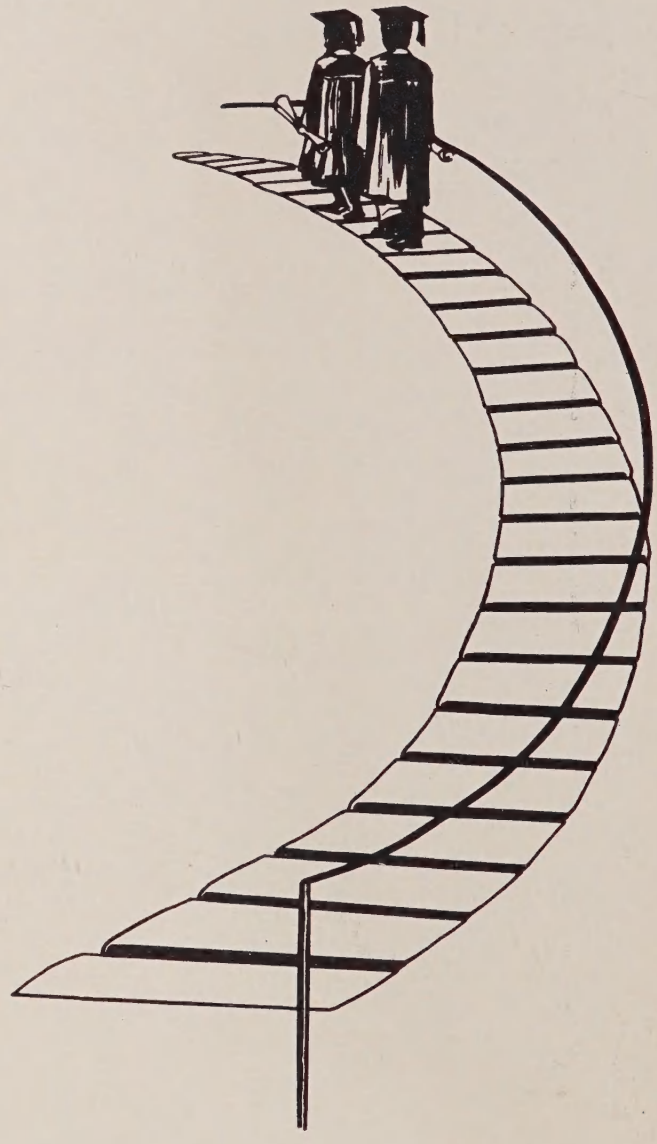
We have now reached the first plateau in our climb up the stairway of life. It is with regret that we leave our past but with faith that we strive to even greater heights.

The going so far has not been easy; there have been times when we stumbled along the way. Our teachers and our friends were always there to help. Life is not a "glass staircase." There are splinters and ragged edges; but with each experience, we learn how to climb unharmed and to face the world unafraid.

These are the stairs we looked longingly at before entering high school, as well as with fear our first day as freshmen. With tears in our hearts and pride in our walk, we descended graduation night, never again to ascend them as students.

And yet, the stairs remain, a symbol that we have greater heights to obtain.

To you, the Seniors of '61, this year's "Tiger Tales" is dedicated. Through it we hope you can look where you have already been--through precious memories. Nevertheless, we cannot climb backwards, only forward.



Dedication

We pay tribute to you as one of the most devoted members of the Wadesboro High School faculty. As we have taken each step toward adulthood, you have always been by our side to help us and to lift us when we stumble. You have been wherever we needed you to guide us, advise us, and when necessary, to push us toward our goals. In sincere appreciation for your guidance, patience, and friendship during the last four years, we, the seniors of 1961, dedicate the Tiger Tales to you, Mrs. Mildred Johnson.

Class Song
(Tune: "Ebb Tide")

Now's the time, we must part
But we know in our hearts
That no matter how far
We may roam, we shall come home
To you.

Through the grades, one through twelve
All these memories we have held
And will hold forever more
Until time shall be no more.

Wadesboro High School through you
Now our dreams can come true
To all who have shared
Our fondest memories and cares
We now say good-bye!

The junior class reached the third landing of high school with great enthusiasm. Included among them were cheerleaders, sponsors, majorettes, honor students, and baseball, basketball, and football players.

There was never a dull moment for the juniors. To raise money for the Junior-Senior Prom, they sold magazine subscriptions. February came, and the juniors received their class rings.

As spring approached, they were busy making plans for Junior-Senior. They turned the Central School Auditorium and Cafeteria into a beautiful Southern Garden.

The class enjoyed a year of fun but it was also a year of work to prepare them for the last flight of steps which would lead them to graduation--the end of their high school life.

The sophomores of Wadesboro High School have completed the climbing of the second flight of the stairway which leads to the ultimate goal, the procurement of knowledge which will help them to become responsible persons and useful citizens in later life. Even though the climb has been long and seemed difficult at times, it has done much for them in that it has strengthened them, just as the preceding one has. They took pride in handling new responsibilities, such as the building of the bonfire before homecoming and the furnishing of entertainment and waitresses for the Junior-Senior Prom. They participated in clubs and extracurricular activities.

On September 2, the Freshman class of 1961 climbed their first flight of stairs into a wonderful and exciting world of high school.

Those first few days were full of excitement and anticipation. This was a drastic change from junior high and a wonderful change at that. The things that appealed to everyone, most of all, was changing classes and feeling independent.

A number of students joined clubs that were offered. They found these quite enjoyable.

One of the high-lights for Freshman girls was "Freshman Week". This was the initiation into the Future Homemakers of America. The week was full of things planned by upper classmen and ended with "Hobo Day".

This was the first year they had taken part in Homecoming. They really enjoyed decorating floats and participating in the parade. They were especially proud to have Pat Eddins represent the Freshman Class during the Homecoming festivities.

Junior Varsity cheerleaders were chosen in the early fall. They led cheers and helped boost the team at Junior Varsity football and basketball games.

Their freshman year has been a perfect example of high school and left them with a great anticipation of the other three flights of high school.

Class

It's hard to understand how Russia beat us to the moon.

After two days of exercise, those steps were really hard to climb.

Ha! Ha! Your ring is a year old!

Chow time!

Stampede? No, we're just changing classes.

ACTIVITIES

VICE-PRESIDENT
Linda Hildreth

Under the leadership of Joe Capell, as president, the Student Council has been very active this year. This organization had the responsibility of keeping order and discipline in the halls and lunch room. For the first time, the student council was in charge of all homecoming activities. Every two weeks the chapel program was under the direction of the council, although various clubs took turns in presenting them. During football season, letters of welcome were sent to visiting teams and students.

SECRETARY
Gail Brower

Representatives displayed attractive bulletin boards in the front hall. As in years past, the student council took as a project, helping a needy family. This was done in the form of White Christmas. During the year a joint meeting of Anson, Morven, and Wadesboro councils met and discussed problems of student government in Anson County. A spring semi-formal was sponsored by the council in order to raise money for the treasury.

Wadesboro Tigers

The Tigers, losing seventeen seniors from last year, were underrated in the Conference this year. At the beginning of the season the Tigers proved that they were not the weaklings they were called. When they met powerful Massey Hill, the Tigers romped to victory 19-0.

The second game of the season proved to be the "unlucky No. 2" as it has been for the Tigers the past three years. The Tigers swallowed a 19-7 loss to the 4A South Mecklenburg. They came back to topple Catholic High the following week 27-13, with Coach Ray Shelton clearing the bench.

The fourth game of the season was the important one because it was with Lumberton, the first conference game of the season. The Tigers squeezed through with a 14-6 victory over the Pirates.

Next week Wadesboro really fought to bring home a 13-12 win over Rohanen.

Monday afternoon, the following week, the injury riddled Tigers prepared to meet Rockingham, the leaders of the Conference, our arch-rival. On the Friday the game was played, it was raining and the field was muddy. The Tigers could not muster enough steam and gave the Rockets an open track.

The mangled Tigers, not being at full strength the remainder of the season, managed to win only one of the four remaining games.

The Homecoming game with Sanford was a rough game with Wadesboro going down 20-6.

The team showed fine sportsmanship throughout the season; although the going got rough, everyone stuck with it.

The football players had their banquet January 16. The speaker was Clyde B. "Peahead" Walker, a former college coach and now scout for the professional New York Giants. The banquet was presented by the Wadesboro Jaycees.

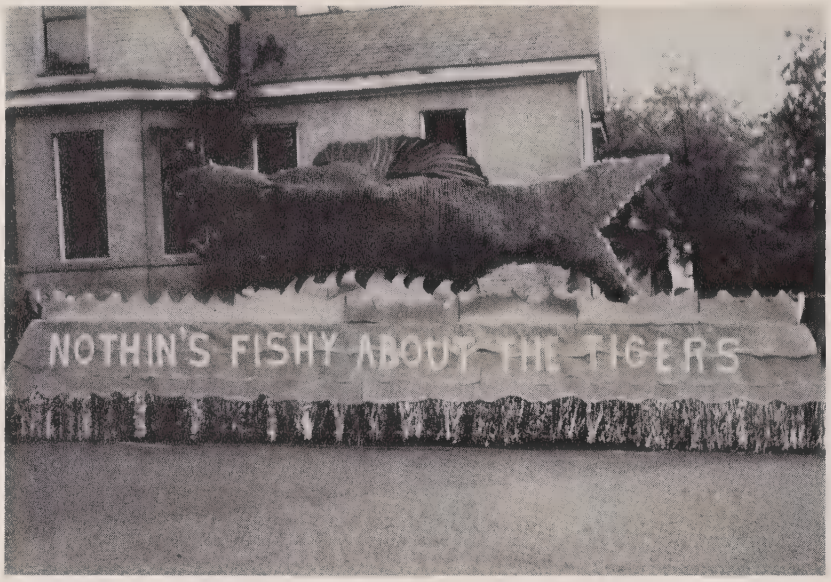
FEATURES



"Nothin's Fishy About The Tigers" was the theme of the float entered by Mrs. Mildred Johnson's Senior homeroom. The bright orange fish added much color to the parade. No one was surprised to hear they were one of the first place winners.

Miss Jessie Ruth Honeycutt's Senior homeroom float was another first place winner. The theme of the float was "The Only Good Bug is a Dead Bug." On it was a giant can of "Tiger" bug killer and a huge dead yellowjacket which represented the opposing team.

A giant stork carrying a football in its beak, stood on Mrs. Robert McCue's Junior homeroom float. The theme, "We're Expecting A Victory," increased the spirit of the spectators. They well deserved tying for first place.

Activities

Homecoming dawned at Wadesboro High School on October 28. School was dismissed at two o'clock in order for students to finish last minute preparations on their floats. The parade began at 4:30. It was the longest parade ever, and many bystanders commented that it was the best. Every high school home room entered a float to be judged in the competition. The Civitan Club had a pancake supper immediately following the parade. Many local people attended before going to the football game. In a special ceremony at the pre-game show, the queen and her court were introduced. The players came onto the field and broke the sign which showed a picture of the victory bell. This started the 1960 Homecoming game. At the half-time ceremonies, Gail Brower was crowned queen by superintendent W. L. Wildermuth. The band presented a special musical program. And as Auld Lang Syne was played, many seniors, with mixed emotions, looked back over their life in Wadesboro High. The game ended in a score of 20-0 in favor of Sanford, but the excitement lingered on. The Homecoming Dance was held in the auditorium of Central Elementary School. It was attended by many students, alumni, and members of the faculty of Wadesboro High. The Homecoming queen reigned over the dance from a special throne. The dance ended with band playing "Good Night, Ladies," and everyone left with wonderful memories of another homecoming.

The queen and her attendants sat proudly on their special float.

The queen and her court view the Tigers.

Gr-r-rowl! Tigers run onto the field.

The Tigers fight hard.

Senior Play

"Jane Eyre," a three-act play adapted from the romantic novel by Charlotte Bronte, was presented by the senior class December 8. The first drama attempted by a senior class in many years was directed by Mrs. Bob McCue.

Rosemary Allen, playing the role of Jane Eyre, a governess, captured the audience with her adept performance. Mr. Rochester, the master of Thornfield Hall and Jane's lover, was played by Steve James. They were ably assisted by members of the supporting cast.

Possibly the role capturing the most interest was that of the mad woman portrayed by Hilda Little. This part added both suspense and excitement to the love story.

Mrs. Fairfax, housekeeper of Thornfield was played by Margaret Simmons. She conveyed the feeling that her character was an immaculate and efficient lady who could keep things to herself. Joyce Wilkes portrayed the part of Leah, a young, rather talkative housemaid with a kind heart and a tendency toward superstition.

Susan Little, as Grace Poole, a staid and taciturn -looking woman, played this mysterious and nervous woman with understanding. Adele, Mr. Rochester's young ward, was played by Rose Marie Whisnant.

Marsha Tucker acted the part of Lady Ingram, a tall imposing woman with a haughty manner. Her daughter Blanche, portrayed by Gail Brower, was very vain. Mary, Lady Ingram's small, slim, lighthearted, gay, and coquettish daughter, was played by Mararuth Cox.

Calvin Rushing acted as Frederick Logan, Mary's faithful admirer. The villain of the play, Mr. Mason, was played by Joe V. Capell. Ronald Williamson portrayed Mr. Wood, the clergyman.

The stage and costumes of the characters were reminiscent of the 1840's. So the senior actors, actresses, and crewmen exercised their talents in presenting a play of another century as well as a drama.

All the members of the senior class participated behind the scenes. The stage settings, costumes, make up, publicity, and business were all handled by the seniors.

Dear Jeanne

Well, I sure have had fun this year. Haven't you? Too bad I don't see in from of you any more in Algebra I. But Miss Bodie had different ideas. Wasn't Study hall fun, while it lasted at first - I hope we can have many more classes together and the rest of the year and the rest of the next. Please stay your same sweet self.

Love,

Peggy

Jeanne, this year has certainly been a great one. We have really had some good times, we found, also practice and when we did we found lots of luck in the future. Good luck in the last six months.

Well, your first year of High School is almost over. It's great isn't it. I can look forward to seeing you next year. Lots of luck to a real nice girl.

John Don

Hello Good Buddy.

Jeanne you are a swell kid. You have a nice personality but temper (I didn't mean to say that). High School has been a ball, blast, bear dance or just plain ole fun. Boy we'll be a great class next year. Just think will be Sophomores and repperclassmen. We will probly boss the smart freshmens around. We had a ball in band (at times). I wish they would change the contest to some other town besides Greensboro. Just think (again) I made sax. Ugh. (not for long). Think of all that apple cider. And now for the compliments.

Jeanne Little you are a very pretty, sweet, generous, smart, courteous, bold, courageous and ah, ah, ah---. We have really had a good time this year and good luck for next (that you need it.) you're a good friend (I hope).

Take it easy greasy
